

BUILDING A WRITING COMMUNITY (K-6)

CREATING A SAFE AND RESPONSIVE CLASSROOM FOR STUDENT WRITERS

This entry level open institute offers teachers the opportunity to develop authentic writing experiences that build a community of writers from the beginning of the school year. Using personal writing as a catalyst for understanding the importance of developing community, participants will:

- understand what it means to write in a safe and responsive classroom
- draw on student knowledge and experience to write from abundance
- learn strategies to develop students' writing fluency and confidence
- utilize a variety of mentor texts as supports for writing instruction
- identify ways to support all students, including ELLs, GATE, and developing writers

"If you really want to write, you can write. And now is the best time to begin."
—Kate Messner
